

corruptly endeavored to influence,
obstruct, or impede the due administration of justice.

According to count one of the indictment, Mr. Libby carried out this corrupt endeavor by making the following three allegedly false statements to the grand jury:

(1.) That when Mr. Libby spoke with Tim
Russert of NBC News, on or about July 10, 2003, Mr. Russert asked Mr. Libby if Mr.

Libby knew that Joseph Wilson's wife worked for the CIA and that Mr. Russert told Mr. Libby that all the reporters knew it;

(2.) That when Mr. Libby spoke with Tim Russert of NBC News, on or about July 10, 2003, Mr. Libby was surprised to hear that Mr. Wilson's wife worked for the CIA; and

(3.) That Mr. Libby advised Matthew Cooper of Time magazine on or about July 12, 2003, that he had heard that other reporters were saying that Mr. Wilson's wife worked for the CIA, and further advised him that Mr. Libby did not know whether this assertion was true.

To act "corruptly," as this word is used in these instructions, means to act voluntarily and deliberately and with an evil motive or improper purpose or intent to influence, or obstruct, or interfere with the administration of justice.

The term "endeavors," as used in these
